A restaurant serving Neapolitan-style pizza and gluten-free pizza is set to open in the forthcoming Terminal South development in Peoplestown, plus more restaurant news from around metro Atlanta.

Feel Goods Pizza comes from restaurateur Andy Bibliowicz and will include two separate kitchens, one of which is designed to serve exclusively gluten-free items in a contamination-free space.

The eatery will offer build-your-own pizzas as well as signature pies like the Quesito with a ricotta base, mozzarella, pecorino, goat cheese, Gouda and fresh garlic; and the Salata with pesto, goat cheese, fennel sausage, peppers, hot honey and lemon vinaigrette salad. Gluten-free versions will be available for any pizza for a $3 upcharge.

Also on the menu are charcuterie, whipped feta, salads, sandwiches, a few pasta dishes and desserts. The sandwiches can be made gluten-free for an extra $3, and Bibliowicz said they're working to source gluten-free pasta as well.

The beverage program will feature espresso drinks, beer and cocktails like a pistachio martini (vanilla vodka, pistachio liqueur, pistachio rim) and a chocolate orange espresso martini.

Feel Goods Pizza will be located in Terminal South's Building Two across the street from Building One, which will house forthcoming food hall Switchman Hall. The 2,100-square-foot space will also have patio seating.

Bibliowicz is also the co-owner of Te Quiero Tacos which is slated to open in Switchman Hall, Stroll Coffee y Snacks in Midtown and Peoples Town Coffee Bar.

Terminal South is projected to open in the spring in Atlanta's Peoplestown neighborhood at 1155 Hank Aaron Drive SE. It will be just steps from the Southside Beltline trail and the final stop of MARTA's future bus rapid transit line in Peoplestown.

The 45,625-square-foot development features the adaptive reuse of two former warehouse structures; Building One will be home to Switchman Hall, and Building Two will house Feel Goods Pizza. The development will also have retail and office space.
